

DEBT killing you?

Three or more months behind on your mortgage? Credit cards maxed out? Being sued by creditors?

If so, your credit rating may already be shot, and filing for bankruptcy won't make it much worse. If you remain employed a Chapter 7 bankruptcy may actually help your credit worthiness by relieving you of existing debt on credit cards, deficiencies on repossessed autos and homes, loans from finance companies, and many court judgments.

Let's have a talk about your getting a fresh start. After all, my office is a debt relief agency that helps people file for bankruptcy under the Bankruptcy Code.
